SPEAKING CARINTHIAN

All traditional varieties of the Sunuthern Bavarian dialect spoken in Carinthia may generally be referred to as "Carinthian dialect". This primarily describes rural speech and, only secondarily, the speech of the urban population. From a linguistic point of view, however, this statement does not fully hold up, as it is based purely on geography. Linguistically, there is no dialect feature that exactly follows the Carinthian provincial border; at the same time, some areas of Carinthia belong dialectologically to neighbouring regions.
